"Today would have been Billy Frank Jr's 84th birthday, and while we miss his strong yet humble presence, his legacy is very much alive. There is no one word to describe Billy. He was a leader, a warrior, a teacher, a mentor, a champion, a father, a grandfather. He was unforgettable. Irreplaceable. On this day – and every day – we should be reminded to stop and, as Billy said, "...listen to the world that sustains us."

- Governor Jay Inslee

We would like to Thank the Squaxin Island Tribe community and Squaxin Tribal Council for this great honor of our Uncle Billy Frank. Our dad was his older brother Andrew "Sonny" McCloud. We thought the world of our Uncle and all that he has done for all tribes. Thank you from the late Andrew & Edith McCloud family. It was a very memorable evening to hear such beautiful words for our uncle.

Billy Frank Jr Day Celebration Included Dedication of Sign Marking Billy Frank Jr Way (entrance to NR/CR building)

NWIFC - The Squaxin Island, Stillaguamish, Nooksack, Lummi and Lower Elwha Klallam Tribal Councils recently declared Billy Frank Jr.'s birthday – March 9 – a tribal holiday.

Squaxin Island tribal offices were closed that day, and the tribe celebrated by dedicating a new sign marking Billy Frank Jr Way, the entrance to its recently constructed Natural Resources/Cultural Resources building.

"We all miss Billy and what we need to do is continue his mission and remember what he wanted us to do," said Squaxin Island Chairman David Lopeman. "Setting aside of day of remembrance for our hero every year is one of the highest honors we can give."

He passed away May 5, 2014.

Billy helped lead a campaign for treaty fishing rights in the 1960s and 1970s. Treaty tribes reserved the right to fish, hunt and gather shellfish in treaties with the federal government in the 1850s. But when tribal members tried to exercise those rights, they were arrested for fishing in violation of state law. Frank was arrested more than 50 times in defiance of state regulation of tribe fishing. A federal court decision in U.S. v. Washington in 1974 (the Boldt decision) reaffirmed the 20 treaty Indian tribes in western Washington as co-managers of the salmon resource with the state.

Frank was chairman of the Northwest Indian Fisheries Commission for more than 30 years.

"Billy's strength just wasn't in his tenacity during the Salmon Wars, but in his patience in finding peace with people who used to fight with him," said Jim Peters, Squaxin Island Tribal Council member.

Council Corner

Whitney Jones - It's no secret that, while I have a crazy busy schedule, I am very committed to attending our Tribal Council meetings. I will cut travel short and sometimes have to rearrange other meetings around them if necessary. And when we do have to schedule additional meetings, the Chairman has been very gracious about working with my busy calendar. I appreciate the Council's willingness to be flexible whenever possible and I know that other Council Members who work off-site do too.

Recently there were two different, equally important Council-related meetings that I needed to cover in the same day, in different states. With the Chairman's consent, I pre-arranged with the IT Department to video-conference into our regular Council meeting and I booked the flight for the second meeting out of town. That Thursday morning I joined in using a variety of equipment to see, listen to and interact with the presenters and the rest of the Council throughout the day. Later in the afternoon, when it was time to head into the second meeting, I simply excused myself from Council, closed the computer, and walked down the hall three states away from the Council meeting I had just left. For the most part it worked out well, and while I definitely prefer to be at our Council meetings in person, I'm glad to know that in a pinch, we have options. Because as the world around us becomes more inclined to move toward increased electronic communications, we need to be prepared to get on board as well.

I attended the National Congress of American Indians (NCAI) in Washington DC at the end of February. The Winter Session agenda includes a significant amount of time discussing national budget issues and national political concerns. Separate from the conference, we did spend time with staff from our local senators and legislators offices specifically discussing issues that directly affect us here at Squaxin Island as well. It is a never-ending battle to keep telling our story over and over again, but it is a necessary one. I am pleased that we have good relationships with our congressional representatives, because I'm confident that those relationships and the repeated telling of our story will help create positive changes in the future.

LEARNING CENTER

Youth Activities Program

Jerilynn Vail - Spring Break is right around the corner and our theme is "Fun with Fitness." We have quite a bit planned to get youth moving, along with a variety of arts-n-craft projects. Our Spring Break hours are listed on our flyer and on this month's calendar.

Our afterschool program is supported by the Child and Adult Care Food Program (CACFP). Through this program we provide an afterschool snack and a light meal to youth in our afterschool program. We are required to meet specific nutrition standards and the CACFP Program provides comprehensive lists of what we can serve and be reimbursed for in their program. The early snack is served as youth begin arriving after school. It is required to include two out of three possible food components: (1) 100% juice or fruits or vegetables, (2) meat or a meat alternative, or (3) a grain or bread. A meal is served from 4:00 - 4:45 p.m. and is required to include 1% Milk and two-servings of fruit and/or vegetable, a serving of grain or bread, and a serving of meat or a meat alternative. Water is always offered throughout the day. We also ask youth to pitch in by taking responsibility to rinse and put their individual dishes in the dishwasher.

Another part of our afterschool program is a daily trivia question for small prizes. Participating youth will read the question (with help when needed), then go to the computer lab or can learn other ways to find answers somewhere within the building – the library, asking staff or visitors, etc. An example of a daily trivia question is, "What are two antonyms?" An antonym is a word opposite in meaning to another, like good and bad. We try to get youth to think of learning new things as fun.

CHUM Project

Laurel Wolff - We love the nice weather, especially for the Outdoor Club that started last month with a hike in Olympic National Park. The teens loved being outside, spending time together and taking lots of pictures. I would also like to give a shout out to our wonderful guest artists, Taylor Krise and John Ackerman, for their positive and inspiring presence in the Teen Center over the past month. The Mural Project they have been working on with our youth was a lot of fun and we hope to have more projects like it in the future.

The week of Spring Break is going to be busy this year. We will be taking a trip to Seattle, where teens will go on a "Future Me" scavenger hunt. Outdoor Club will be on Tuesday that week. Youth Council will have a mini-retreat and on Friday our basketball teams will travel to Nisqually for a tournament.

Check our Facebook page (SquaxinTeens) for more details as these events get closer.

Don't forget these other teen activities on the April calendar:

- Youth Council will meet at 3:30 on April 13th and April 27th
(both are Mondays)
- Girl's Circle will meet on Tuesdays from 5:00 - 6:00 p.m.
(except Spring Break)
- Basketball practice for teens
(Mondays at 4:30, Tuesday and Thursday at 4:15)
- On April 24th, we will be attending the Luminary Procession in Olympia

Youth Council Update

Samantha Ackerman - Throughout the last few weeks, the Teen Center has been pretty busy working on this awesome mural project! It has been a great success. With time and dedication from John Ackerman, Taylor Krise, youth and community members, they have brought this mural to life. Since this project was presented to the youth, it took a minute to start it up. But once more and more of the community was involved it was finished in no time. This is an example of the potential our community has. Look what we have created in such a short time!

Inspirational Teen of the Month

Samantha Ackerman

Samantha is this month's Inspirational Teen. Balance is a hard thing to accomplish in life, especially as a teen, but Samantha makes it look easy. We lift our hands up to Samantha this month for working hard in school (she was recently accepted to UW-Tacoma), getting a job with Public Safety, and being passionate about her culture. In addition to school and work Samantha still finds time to participate in Safe Streets and as Secretary for Youth Council.

We wanted to let you know we notice all the hard work you have been doing and the contributions you make to this community.

Send your nominations for next month's Inspirational Teen to Laurel at lwolff@squaxin.us or on Facebook.

This mural not only represents our youth, but our tribe as a whole. Our culture is the glue in our Tribe. Being able to see our community come together and be a part of something bigger than ourselves and create a masterpiece is truly uplifting. The finishing touch to the mural will be the carved centerpiece that is in the works as we speak. Soon enough this mural will be a finished product hanging up in front of our TLC building for us tribal members to hold near and dear to our hearts - I know I do!

Oakland Bay Junior High and Olympic Middle School News

Dusty Hirsch - If your student is struggling in math I would like to recommend a user-friendly, online resource, which you should find useful. Khan Academy is a free tool that empowers parents to better understand what their children are up to as students, and how to best help them. Go to www.khanacademy.org to set up your parent profile. If you need help setting up your profile or learning how to use the website, I would be happy to help guide you through the process. In my opinion, the best part about the math help program is that you are able to enter the math problem and Khan Academy teaches you step-by-step how to solve ANY MATH PROBLEM from elementary math, pre-algebra, algebra, geometry, to calculus!

This resource is valuable in the event your student is unable to make it to the TLC for homework help, or at times when the TLC is closed. If you would like to stop by the Tu Ha' Buts Learning Center, I can show you how to use the website. If you have any questions, please call the Tu Ha' Buts Learning Center at (360) 426-9781 on weekdays after 3:00 p.m. and ask for Dusty.

Squaxin Tribe Hosts Inaugural Billy Frank Jr. Day Celebration State and Tribal Leaders Gather; 'He's My Martin Luther King'

Story and photo by Steven Wyble, Nisqually Valley News

Billy Frank Jr. played an instrumental role in the Fish Wars of the 1960s and 1970s, culminating in the landmark Boldt decision that affirmed tribal fishing rights.

Now, the Squaxin Indian Tribe is recognizing Frank, who died last May at age 83, with a tribal holiday on his birthday, March 9.

A ceremony on Monday at the Little Creek Casino near Shelton brought together leaders from various tribes and state government to remember Frank, a Nisqually tribal elder, and his passion for protecting the environment.

The idea for a day commemorating Frank originated last November, said Jim Peters, a Squaxin Indian Tribe councilman.

Peters visited Rhonda Foster, the tribe's cultural resources director, and she asked him what the tribe was doing to keep Frank's memory alive. After talking further, they came up with the idea of naming the road in front of the Squaxin tribe's Natural Resources building after Frank, Peters said. (Their idea came to fruition — Billy Frank Jr. Way was dedicated on Monday).

Foster pointed to a photo of Frank on her office wall and said, "You know what? He's my Martin Luther King," Peters remembered.

"And I was like, 'You know what, he is,'" Peters said. "He had all this diversity along with everybody else that was involved during that time to fight against the state and keep on pushing, keep on going, keep the mission going and then afterwards he had even a bigger impact on a lot of us."

Frank's legacy was not just the Fish Wars, but everything that came after — managing fish and wildlife and negotiating with the state and federal government to get things done, he said.

The idea of naming a road after Frank evolved into Peters asking the tribal council to make Frank's birthday a tribal holiday.

After getting the blessing of Frank's family, it was the first resolution the tribal council passed in the new year, Peters said.

But the holiday shouldn't just be a day off, Peters said; the tribe should set up activities for the holiday in the future to teach people about Frank's legacy.

"We need to go out into our schools and we need to educate the future generations, the people that might not have had an opportunity to meet Billy Frank or even read about him up to his passing last year," he said. "We'll be out in the schools, maybe even at the Capitol buildings, in Congress offices and Senator's offices, keeping his name alive so that my kids, my grandkids, will be up here recognizing Billy Frank Jr. — my grandkids, and all your grandkids, too."

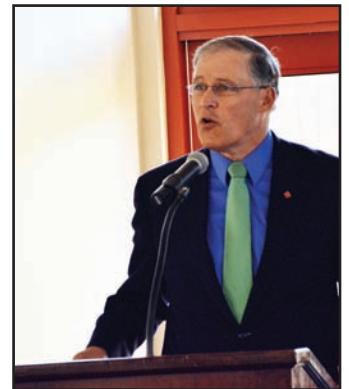

Gov. Jay Inslee gave his enthusiastic support of the holiday. Eighty-four years ago, the salmon of the state got a voice in the form of Billy Frank Jr., he said.

"And I'm here to tell you we're going to do everything humanly possible to make sure that voice continues to ring, not only in our ears, but in our hearts and in our legislation and in our rules and in our communities, because we know that when he asked us to pause and listen to the voice that sustains us to this natural world, it's a lesson that we've got to continue to listen to," Inslee said.

He recalled verbally sparring with a legislator in his office earlier in the day. The legislator didn't believe human activity was powerful enough to impact climate change or ocean acidification, Inslee said.

But people are powerful enough to damage Puget Sound and the climate, and Frank understood that, Inslee said.

"When I was talking to this legislator, I could hear Billy Frank's voice in my right ear and in my left ear, and in my heart, and I know that Billy would have spoken very passionately to this legislator, and he might have used language that wasn't exactly used — at least typically, at least in public — in the governor's office. But the passion would ring true," he said.

Veterans Committee

The Veterans Committee has been meeting for eleven years and one would think it finished, but they are still making changes and maintaining the grounds. Current activities include engraving a large stone to identify the grandbaby of the Medicine Creek Treaty Tree. The stone was contributed by Craig Parker.

The committee meets the third Thursday of each month at 10:00 AM in the large conference room of the administration building. They are working on a book to honor all the Squaxin veterans. They also need younger people to help with presenting the colors and other events that are hard for the older veterans.

Thanks, Vince Henry, for bringing in his crew to clean and prune the gardens.

COMMUNITY

Weather Cautions Protect Your Animals

Spring is here. It is important to protect pets from the extreme temperatures.

Dogs and cats who spend time outdoors typically grow a heavier coat during the cold months. Other pets need that protection. A sweater for your cat or dog is a welcome addition to their walk outdoors.

Dog houses outside should be turned so the opening is away from the approaching wind and weather. Also it is important to add an extra blanket for additional warmth during the cold days and nights.

Talking Tails - Listen to Your Dog

A dog's tail is communication. The only emotional condition that all tail wagers share. Tail wagging is a visual signal that must be read in context, along with other actions that are taking place at the same time. The quality of wagging varies:

1. Aggressive wags are still or a short staccato movement.
2. Submissive wags are wide and loose.
3. Confident animals wag a tail that is fully erect.
4. Subordinate hold their wagging tail lower with less movement.

Do you have Child Support concerns?

- Large debts?
- Amounts set too high/low?
- Support orders needing to be Modified?

The Washington State Division of Child Support has representatives available the third and fourth Wednesdays of the month at Building Strong Families Through Culture at the Community Kitchen from 3pm to 5pm as well as the TANF office from 1pm to 3pm on the third Wednesday of the month. Come see us and we'll walk you through all the confusion!

Squaxin Safe Streets

March was a turning point in our project as we mobilized on 6 months of success as a foundation for the future. Here are some of the highlights of what we've accomplished in just the last few weeks:

Logo by Samantha Ackerman

- We now have 9 Block Watch Captains who will be trained to observe and report suspicious activity in their area.
- Painting on the mural project wrapped up in the Mary Johns Room with 23 youth participants signed up over a month of painting! Carving and a presentation to Tribal Council are the next steps.
- Our March meeting had great attendance, and we spoke about upcoming goals as well as imagining what the community will feel like when this project succeeds.

Join us at our next meeting, April 21st at 5:00 p.m. in the Community Kitchen. We'll have specially prepared dinner from local chef in training, Michelle Joe, and we'll make sure we have plenty for a big turnout!

Drug and Alcohol related incidents for the month of February

(Note: These statistics are published on a monthly basis as a part of the Community Action Plan created by participants in the September, 2014 Safe Streets Kickoff event.)

21 Total drug/alcohol incidents

(Drug = 8 | Alcohol=13 | all adult offenses)

- 3 Arrests
- 4 Citations/infractions
- 4 Cases referred to Tribal court
- 4 Cases referred to other agency

Monthly Averages

- 23 Incidents
- 9 Arrests
- 7 Citations

Six Months Accomplishments

September

Our kickoff drew about 90 people over two days, with the Safe Streets Campaign from Tacoma helping us determine priorities and strategies for action.

October

We began work on priorities from September, in particular getting the word out about the project. We hosted the Halloween Haunted Bus Shed during trick-or-treating and a pumpkin carving activity the night before. Sam Ackerman, Chasity Masoner and Elizabeth Heredia published consecutive monthly calls to action in Klah-Che-Min

November

We supported the Squaxin Youth Council to coordinate between different departments of the tribe to plan a Youth to Youth Healing Jam, after the tragic school shooting in Marysville. In our monthly meeting, we elected 6 community members to serve as advisors. By February we'd elected 7. We started a Facebook group "Squaxin Safe Streets/ Community Watch."

December

We reactivated and received our first call to the Squaxin Drug Tip line, a 24/7 anonymous line at the Police Department for reporting suspicious drug-related activity on tribal land. (360) 462-7104. We chose the name "Squaxin Safe Streets," approved Taylor Krise's proposal for a youth mural project about life in balance, and supported holiday activities planned by other departments.

January

A group from the Advisory board attended a Drug Free Communities meeting at the Port Gamble S'Klallam Tribe. We received submissions and voted on a logo design at our annual Drug & Alcohol Awareness Dinner, won by Sam Ackerman (her design is currently being formatted for final printing). Evan Welkin and Audelia Araiza attended the Recovery Coach Academy Training by the Northwest Indian Treatment Center supporting those in recovery. Patricia Green is already a trained coach. The group formally approved Taylor's mural design at our monthly meeting.

February

Taylor Krise and John Ackerman began work on the 8' X 16' mural in the Mary Johns room. We held a Neighborhood Awareness and Safety Training with the Safe Streets Campaign, for taking the work of our meetings into our neighborhoods. We set a plan for creating awareness posters and video media to explain our materials and mission for the Tribal community at our meeting. We learned about the effects of Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder from a local expert and its impact on individuals and communities.

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Keep Mice Out of Your Home

Almost all homeowners and renters know the feeling of unease that accompanies finding mice or rodents in your home. Whether in the kitchen, attic, basement or dining room - a rodent sighting can incite surprise and fear in even the most composed person. Unfortunately, these common pests are resourceful creatures that can enter a building or home through the smallest opening or crack, and require very little space to travel inside. Mice can easily fit through spaces as small as a nickel!

Rodents seek shelter indoors, especially during the cooler fall and winter months, and once inside can cause more than just an unpleasant infestation. Rodents put homes at risk for electrical fires by gnawing through wires. More frequently, though, rodents serve as vectors, carrying bacteria, such as salmonella, on their bodies and contaminating food sources, kitchen surfaces and equipment.

Fortunately, there are many ways homeowners and renters can proactively prevent and get rid of rodent infestations in their homes. The biggest reason mice enter the home is for food and shelter. Remove these, and mice won't find it habitable:

- Install door sweeps on exterior doors and repair damaged screens. Make sure there are no gaps along the bottom of your door that will allow mice to enter the home
- Screen vents and openings to chimneys.
- Seal cracks and holes on the outside of the home, including areas where utilities and pipes enter the home, using caulk, steel wool or a combination of both.
- Store food in airtight containers and dispose of garbage properly regularly.
- Make sure counters and floors are kept clean of any potential food sources such as dirty dishes, garbage, paper, tissue.
- Keep attics, basements and crawl spaces well ventilated and dry.
- Replace loose mortar and weather stripping around basement foundation and windows.
- Inspect items such as boxes, grocery bags and other packages brought inside
- Store firewood at least 20 feet away from the house.
- Keep shrubbery trimmed and cut back from the house.
- Keep your lawn mowed and grass trimmed along the house. Mice don't like to cross areas where they are vulnerable to predators.
- If you suspect a pest infestation in your home, contact a licensed professional to inspect and treat the pest problem.

If you spot evidence of a rodent infestation, do not hesitate to act to handle the problem. Rodents are known to reproduce quickly, and a small problem can turn into a big issue overnight if left untreated.

Rodent control and management are important for health and safety reasons. If you suspect a rodent infestation, contact your local pest control professional immediately.

Tribal Vocational Rehabilitation Tourette Syndrome-Awareness Event

Squaxin Island Tribal Vocational Rehabilitation - On March 5, 2015 Squaxin Island Tribal Vocational Rehabilitation hosted a Tourette Syndrome (T/S) awareness event at the Community Kitchen with attendance of 35+ children. It was also great to see our neighboring Tribal Vocational Rehabilitation consortium from Skokomish Tribe be in attendance.

Our guest speaker[s] Carla Richards and son, Kenny Richards, are from Lakewood, WA. Kenny was officially diagnosed with T/S in 2008 at the age of 10. (In order to be officially diagnosed with T/S one needs to have both a motor and vocal tic for at least a year) However, symptoms started to show in 2007. Kenny just turned 17 in January, 2015. Kenny and his mother Carla advocate for T/S awareness as motivational speakers. Carla and Kenny also founded the South Puget Sound support group at the Life Center Church in Tacoma, WA in 2011.

Since being diagnosed with T/S Kenny has flourished in helping others with the attitude "keep pressing forward and never give up." In 2011 Kenny was chosen on scholarship to represent the Tourette Syndrome Association (TSA) of WA/OR Chapter at the National TSA Youth Ambassador Training Program which is held every year in Washington, D.C. The purpose of TSA Youth Ambassador is to spread tolerance of and understanding of T/S with accurate information by going into classrooms, schools, clubs and other establishments while dispelling the myths and stereotypes that are often attributed to and associated with this misunderstood and misdiagnosed disorder.

In 2012 Kenny received the Zac Hollis Youth Achievement award due to his efforts in promoting T/S awareness both as a TSA Youth Ambassador and Support Group Leader.

"The success of the program resulted in great opportunity for outreach to young community members who may have Tourette Syndrome or are affected by an individual with Tourette Syndrome," said June Krise, VR Program Manager.

"We were all very impressed by Kenny's presentation to our community," said Will Marchant, VR Assistant.

Again, thank you Carla and Kenny for an informative and wonderful experience. We also want to thank Michelle Joe, our Culinary Arts student for making a successful and tasty dinner for all participants. It was our pleasure to present this informative event to the Squaxin community.

What Is Tourette Syndrome?

Tourette syndrome (TS) is a neurological disorder where a person has both motor and vocal tics. Doctors and scientists don't know the exact cause of TS, but some research suggests that it occurs when there's a problem with how nerves communicate in the brain. A disturbance in the balance in neurotransmitters — chemicals in the brain that carry nerve signals from cell to cell — may play a role in TS.

People with Tourette syndrome usually first notice symptoms while they're kids or teens. TS affects people of all races and backgrounds, although more guys than girls have the condition.

The main symptoms of TS are tics. Motor tics can be everything from eye blinking or grimacing to head jerking or foot stamping. Some examples of verbal tics are throat clearing, making clicking sounds, repeated sniffing, yelping, or shouting. In rare cases, people with TS might have a tic that makes them harm themselves, such as head banging. At certain times, like when a person is under stress, the tics may become more severe, more frequent, or longer. Or the type of tic may change altogether. (This is also true for people who have tics that are not part of Tourette syndrome.)

Just as TS is different for every person, the treatment for it varies, too. There isn't a cure for TS, and no medication can control the disease itself — although some medications can help control tics if they are severe enough to interfere with a person's life.

Some people may be able to suppress their tics for a short time. But tension builds, and it eventually has to be released as a tic. And if a person is concentrating on controlling the tic, it may be hard to focus on anything else. This can make it hard for teens with TS to have a conversation or pay attention in class.

In addition, many teens with TS have other conditions, such as attention deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD) or obsessive-compulsive disorder (OCD). Learning disabilities are common in people with TS. They also may have trouble sleeping.

Happy Spring time!! In keeping with our efforts to provide useful financial education, we will be focusing this month on bank accounts and credit cards.

Bank Accounts:

When selecting a bank or credit union, do your research. Decide what type of account will best suit your specific needs and any monthly fees that will be associated with your account. Some tips on avoiding fees:

1. Stay above the required "minimum balance".
2. Use your bank's ATM to get cash. Using another bank's ATM might require that you pay a fee.
3. Spend only the money you have. Be sure to track your purchases and write down every transaction you make. Spending more money than you have is called "overdrawing" your account. And when you overdraw your account, you will always have to pay an overdraft fee. This fee can range from $20.00 on up PER overdraft. If you primarily use a debit card for your banking purposes, the most important thing to remember is to keep track of how much you spend on your debit card and also ATM transactions (and associated fees). Keep a ledger for all your transactions.

Credit Cards:

Whether you are looking to build a credit history or improve your credit history, know that both of these options take time. Bottom line is be sure to use your credit wisely.

How can I get credit?

If you do not have credit, one of the best places to start is with a credit card. Again, compare several credit cards and apply for the one that gives you the best deal.

Some things to look for:

1. Low annual fee
2. Low APR (annual percentage rate)
3. Lower fees (if a payment is late and/or if you go over your credit limit).
4. A long grace period. A grace period is the time between when you spend the money and when the card charges you interest. Be sure your grace period is at least 25 days long.
5. If you are unable to get a regular credit card, try getting a secured credit card. Make sure to apply for credit cards that report to all 3 credit bureaus. For a secured card, look for:
 1. Low APR (annual percentage rate)
 2. No application or processing fees
 3. Lower annual fees
4. Higher interest rates on the money you deposit.

Ways to improve your credit:

1. Use your credit card a few times per month and pay it off when the bill arrives. Don't leave a balance on your card.
2. Pay your bill by the due date. Don't be late.

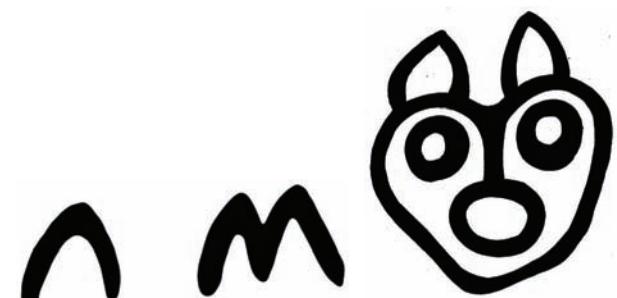

You will start to see an improved credit history. But it will take time.

Belfair State Park

Belfair State Park is a 65-acre, year-round camping park on 3,720-feet of saltwater shoreline at the southern end of Hood Canal in western Washington. It is noted for its saltwater tide flats, wetlands with wind-blown beach grasses and pleasant areas for beach walking and saltwater swimming.

This scenic park lends itself to kite fliers and windsurfers with the warm summer breezes. Interpretive programs are held all summer long. Kayakers will enjoy day trips or overnight outings from the easily accessible sloping gravel beaches. Fall brings large salmon runs to the creeks that flow through the park.

Discover Pass:

A Discover Pass is required for vehicle access to state parks for day use. For more information about the Discover Pass and exemptions, please visit the Discover Pass web page.

baby's first spoonfuls
Is my baby ready?

Your baby can start eating solid foods when he is 6 months old and can:

- sit up with support and hold his head steady.
- put his fingers in his mouth.
- open his mouth to show that he wants food.
- close his lips over the spoon.
- keep food in his mouth and swallow it.
- turn his head away to show he doesn't want food.

If your baby was born early or has a family history of allergies, talk to your health care provider before starting baby foods.

start with infant cereal
Many parents start with rice cereal - it's easy for a baby to digest.

- Mix 1 tablespoon of dry cereal with 4 tablespoons of breastmilk or formula.
- Make the cereal thicker as your baby learns how to eat.
- Offer more cereal if your baby wants more.
- Offer cereal once or twice a day.

Don't feed cereal in a bottle. Your baby could choke or eat too much.

use a baby spoon

- Put a small amount of cereal on the end of a spoon. Wait until your baby opens his mouth and then gently slip it in.
- Let your baby remove the food from the spoon with his lips and tongue.
- Give your baby time to move the food around in his mouth and swallow it.

Most babies love to eat solid foods. Some babies are unsure and need more time. If your baby refuses to eat a baby food, try it again later. Some babies may need to try a new food 8 to 10 times before they eat it.

Continue breastfeeding or using infant formula until your baby is one year old.

© Nutrition Matters, Inc.

fruits vegetables meats

- Offer baby foods with single ingredients such as peaches, pears, green beans and green peas.
- Offer one new fruit or vegetable at a time. Wait 3 to 5 days between new foods. If a new food causes an upset tummy, diarrhea, rash or other reaction, talk to your doctor, nurse or dietitian.
- Offer fruits twice a day. Offer vegetables twice a day.
- Offer pureed meats once or twice a day.
- Mix pureed meats with pureed vegetables or fruits.

eat safe:

- Stay with your baby while he is eating.
- Pour baby food into a dish and feed it to your baby. Don't feed baby food out of a jar. Your baby's saliva will make the food spoil faster.
- Throw away any leftover baby food in the dish.
- Refrigerate opened jars of baby food, and use within 2 days.

be sure your baby can chew and swallow foods from one group before you try the next texture:

1. Smooth or pureed foods
2. Mashed foods
3. Finely chopped foods
4. Tiny pieces of soft food

Most babies can eat finely chopped foods around 8 to 10 months old.

start a routine...

- Feed your baby once or twice a day in the beginning.
- After a couple weeks, your baby may be ready for 2 small meals each day.
- When your baby is 7 to 8 months old, he may be eating 3 small meals each day.
- Most babies are eating 3 small meals and 2 small snacks when they are 8 to 12 months old.

Offer sips of breastmilk, formula or water in a cup when your baby is eating solid foods.

SPIPA Get Up and Go Challenge

SPIPA is starting an inter-tribal challenge at the five SPIPA tribes. The 5210 inter-tribal challenge is a community prevention initiative that promotes four simple strategies to create a healthier lifestyle.

What does 5210 stand for?

- 5 or more fruits and vegetables a day
- 2 hours or less recreational screen time a day
- 1 hour or more of physical activity a day
- 0 sugary drinks and more water a day

The SPIPA "Get Up and Go Challenge" is a four week community activity encouraging all of us to complete the 5-2-1-0 behaviors daily starting May 3rd through July 2nd. Tracker cards are used to check off the daily completed behaviors. They will be distributed at all 5 SPIPA tribes throughout the communities by May 3rd. Completed trackers must be submitted to the contact person at each tribe by- for a chance to receive a t-shirt and be entered into the grand prize raffle.

Who can participate?
The SPIPA "Get Up and Go Challenge" is open to all SPIPA tribal members and community members.

Expected Outcome(s):
The goal with the 5210 challenge is to help our tribal community members become more aware of their daily habits by participating in this 4-week challenge. Pre and Post Surveys will help to track the outcome of before and after results.
The 5210 challenge fits into our 10 year plan by helping to increase the consumption of 5+ fruits & vegetables a day from 19% to at least 50%, and to increase the rate of recommended exercise of adults from 29% to at least 60% by year 2022. Ultimately, we want to prevent cancer by increasing the overall percentage of fruit and vegetable consumption and to increase regular exercise in our communities.
Up to 35% of all cancers in the U.S. could be prevented by appropriate nutrition, physical activity, and body fatness. About 50% of all colon cancers could be prevented by following these healthy lifestyles.

Can you kick the soda pop habit?

Most people know that regular soda is full of sugar. Those empty calories can pack on the pounds fast at any age.

Drinking too much soda can increase your risk of diabetes and heart disease. Studies have shown that people who drink even one or two sodas a day increase their risk of Type 2 diabetes by 26 percent.

Some ideas:

- Try water or unsweetened sparkling water with a slice of fresh fruit, cucumber, or herbs, such as mint. Keep a pitcher handy in the refrigerator or on the table.
- Swap sugary drinks for unsweetened ice tea.
- Keep soda out of the house so your kids won't get used to drinking it regularly.
- Want something sweet to drink? Add a few drops of 100% fruit juice to sparkling water. Remember: Fruit juice is high in sugar & calories, too.
- Buy a nice water bottle; keep it handy & drink from it throughout the day.

If you, or a member of your household, are enrolled in a federally recognized tribe, or you live within the reservation boundaries of the Chehalis, Nisqually, Skokomish, Squaxin Island, or Port Gamble S'Klallam Tribes you may be eligible. There have been recent changes enacted by the USDA that make it much easier to qualify. Please call the SPIPA Food Distribution Warehouse at 360-438-4216 Monday through Friday between the hours of 8:00 a.m. till 4:00 p.m. and one of our staff will be happy to assist you in applying for this program.

KALE: The Queen of Greens

Submitted by Traci Lopeman, Outreach Specialist

Kale is one of the healthiest vegetables on the planet. It belongs to the brassica family, along with broccoli and cabbage.

Ten (10) Reasons to Eat Kale

- 1) High in Vitamin A. One cup of chopped kale has 206% of the daily value of Vitamin A. Vitamin A is great for your vision, skin, as well as preventing lung and oral cavity cancer.
- 2) High in Vitamin C. One cup of chopped kale has 9% of your daily value. Vitamin C is good for boosting your immune system, your metabolism, and hydration.
- 3) High in Vitamin K. One cup of chopped kale has 684% of our daily vitamin K. Vitamin K helps prevent cancer, Alzheimer's, and blood clotting.
- 4) Low in calories, high in fiber. Fiber helps lower cholesterol levels and keeps digestion regular.
- 5) High in antioxidants. Carotenoids and flavonoids are the specific types of antioxidants associated with many of the anti-cancer health benefits. Kale is also rich in eye-health promoting lutein and zeaxanthin compounds.
- 6) Kale is high in iron. Per calorie kale has more iron than beef. Iron helps us feel energized by helping to transport oxygen to various parts of the body.
- 7) Great for cardiovascular support, can lower cholesterol levels.
- 8) Kale is anti-inflammatory, which means it fights arthritis, asthma, and autoimmune disorders.
- 9) It's cheap and can be used in so many recipes!

Massaged Kale Salad Recipe

Submitted by Traci Lopeman, Outreach Specialist

1 large bunch Dinosaur Kale, remove stems and cut into $\frac{1}{2}$ " ribbons
1/4 teaspoon sea salt
Juice of 1 lemon
1/4 cup olive oil
1 apple, cored and cut into chunks
1/4 cup raisins or other dried fruit
1/4 cup toasted sunflower seeds.

Put kale into a large bowl, sprinkle with sea salt and lemon juice. Using your hands, massage kale vigorously for 3 to 5 minutes. Drizzle olive oil over kale and massage for another couple minutes. The salt and lemon juice will "wilt" the greens. Toss in apple chunks, raisins, and sunflower seeds. Salad will keep in the fridge for several days. Enjoy!
